

'New Men Will Coach in Western Schools

(By Associated Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 23.—There will be new faces around the council tables of many western institutions' football strategy boards this year. Three of the latest appointments of additions to coaching or training staffs bring word that William C. Bryan, one-time trainer at the University of Pennsylvania, is to have a like post at the University of California, that R. R. Hager has been assigned to head the freshman team staff at Oregon Agricultural college, and that John Solon is to be assistant coach at the University of Washington.

Besides these, R. F. Hutchinson, who was on the University of Idaho coaching staff last year, has come to Idaho Tech, and Charles M. Pitzer, who coached Montana School of Mines freshmen last year, has advanced to the leadership of the varsity team at the same institution. Harold MacMillan, a former director of athletics in the army, has been named assistant physical director at the University of Idaho. Charles Williams, assistant coach at the University of Illinois last year, will have charge of the second squad at the University of Nevada. And there have been a number of changes or additions on the staffs of Rocky Mountain conference colleges, some of which occasionally meet Pacific Coast conference teams.

WASHINGTON SEES BAD SEASON AHEAD

(By Associated Press)
SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 23.—University of Washington has come in for the usual medium of early season gloom, due to the departure of football men on whom dependence was placed, and the lack of developed material to supplant them. This time it is Grimm and Wick, linemen, who are missing but so far there have been no other losses to disturb Washington's total of 100 wins at other institutions. Both Grimm and Wick were men known for their ability, and their absence will be a considerable gap in the Washington line. The only consolation is that Grimm has gone home to look after his father's business, and so far has proved unresponsive to appeals to return to college. Wick is suffering from injuries received in the game with the University of Oregon last year.
